Overview Recap Credits Trivia & Quotes Reviews Discussion

Maggie eats a magazine and Marge takes her to the hospital, leaving Homer to do the food shopping. Homer abuses a bag boy, which leads to the bag boys going out on strike. With them on strike, the family does not go grocery shopping. When their food runs out, Homer searches the house for food and he finds 30+-year-old animal crackers. When he opens the box, he finds it contains a golden giraffe; the token, which indicates the recipient, has won an African safari. The manufacturer honors the prize and sends the Simpson family to Africa. Their tour of the African wilderness is very strange. A local tribe treats them to a concert. Later, when a hippo tries to attack Homer, the Simpson family escapes on a makeshift raft. They sail down river and end up having to Later, when a hippo tries to attack Homer, the Simpson family escapes on a makeshift raft. They sail down river and end up having to fend for themselves in the wilderness. They come across a scientist who is researching monkeys. When poachers come to take the monkeys, the Simpson family helps him to fight back. Lisa soon discovers that the researcher actually runs a chimp diamond mine and the poachers are actually Greenpeace. The Simpsons fly back home.

Notes Add »

One broadcast of this episode digitally removed the translations to the Swahili song that Kitengi and Homer were singing. The syndicated version restored the translations but edited out Lisa complaining about the rhino hatching from the egg. \(edit\)

Blackboard: I will not flush evidence.
Couch: The family enters the living room and forms a kick line. They are joined by chorus girls, jugglers and then the living room wall rises into the air as the camera pulls back revealing a show biz spectacular that also features magicians, balancing elephants and trapeze artists. \(edit\)

Homer: Olive oil? Asparagus? If your mother wasn't so fancy, we could shop at the gas station like normal people. \(edit\)

Bart: I need this candy for school... candy class.
Homer: Well okay, but get five bags in case we say four on the way home.
Lisa: My teacher said I need cupcakes... cupcakes to learn.
Homer: In the cart.
Bart: I'm out of wine...
Homer: Cart. \(edit\)
